

Profile of Latinos in Monroe County: Key Statistics

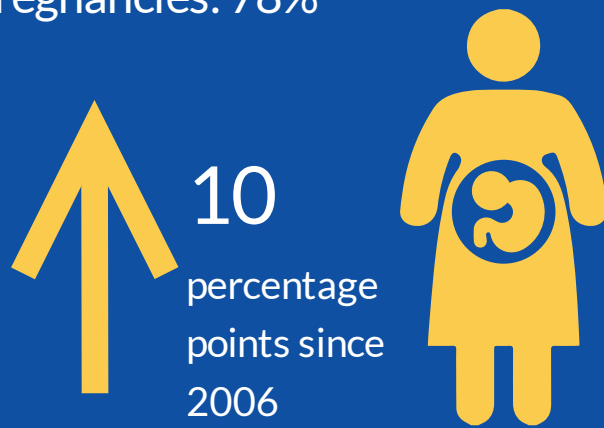

The population of Latinos in the County has more than tripled since 1980, growing from 17,000 to 61,000.

The Latino population is increasingly suburban, with 39% residing in the suburbs, up from 21% in 1980.

More Latinas are beginning prenatal care early in their pregnancies: 78% in 2016.

High school graduation rates have improved, but at 67% are still the lowest among the major racial and ethnic groups. In 2017, one in three Latino students did not graduate on time.

Latinos lag in annual median household incomes, below whites and Asians and on par with African Americans.

